AN OVERVIEW OF FUNCHAL

It is eternally spring on this small, peaceful, volcanic island of Madeira set in the Atlantic Ocean. Soaring cliffs, clear blue water, stunning mountains and deep canyons, beautiful flowers and vast vineyards beckon.

Prince Henry the Navigator discovered the island in the 1400's. He was so enchanted with the island that he returned with Cretan and Cyprus grapevines and Sicilian sugar cane, setting Madeira on its future path as a source of fine wine. Merchants and sailors discovered this delightful temperate crossroads in the ocean too, stopping to rest and trade on their journeys between Africa, India and Europe.

Stroll along Funchal's elegant and bustling sea front promenade. Visit a delightful market and view ornate 16th and 17th century buildings and churches lining the capital streets and alleys.

These islands are noted as the source of Madeira wine.

The islands are also known by the flowers and subtropical fruits. Most of the early settlers were from the Portuguese regions of the Algarve and Minho. The island has historical monuments, streets and plazas (praças) with many gardens and typical small towns. Madeira is known for its beautiful rolling green mountains, and the most breath taking display of flowers. Orchids and birds of paradise rarely seen outside of Hawaii and Pacific Islands.

There are beautiful gardens everywhere. For the first time in Portugal, the Gold award in the 2000 competition for the Greening and Flowering of Towns and villages was presented to the city of Funchal. This award was sought after by hundreds of cities in Europe. It was also awarded as the cleanest city in Portugal.
