Welcome To Palma de Mallorca, Spain

Palma de Mallorca is the capital city of the Balearic Islands and nearly two-thirds of its total population live in Palma. The origins of the Balearic Island civilization lie in prehistoric times. Massive stone monuments dating as far back as the 13th century BC, can still be found on some parts of the island.

These stone monuments are believed to have had some military or religious function during the period of the Talaiot culture.

Romans conquered the islands in 123 BC, naming Palma, "Palma" for the abundance of palm trees that were on the island. Arabic culture soon followed and has left its mark on the life of the islands. In 1229, the forces of King Jaime I of Aragon regained the islands and Mallorca was then declared an independent Christian Kingdom.

Today, in addition to the bustling tourist trade, farming is the chief occupation and the island grows large amounts of lemons, olives, figs, citrus, and grapes for the production of local wines.
