AN OVERVIEW OF MYKONOS

Mykonos is one of the world's most cosmopolitan islands, having become increasingly popular especially during the last 50 years due to the numerous international jet set visitors that spend their holidays on the island. It is widely known for its extremely rich, diverse and often intense nightlife featured by a vast number of bars and nightclubs.

Mykonos is also known for its sandy beaches, offering everything from crystal-clear waters, windsurfing potential, seaside taverns and bars featuring loud music. Many Greek and international celebrities have summer residences in Mykonos and can often be seen walking the white-washed roads or having dinner at a small street-side table of an expensive restaurant or a tavern.

The island is part of the Cyclades, lying between Tinos, Siros, Paros and Naxos. It spans an area of 86 km and rises at an elevation of 364m at its highest point. The island is composed primarily of granite. It has little natural fresh water and relies on the desalination of seawater in order to meet its needs. The largest town is Mykonos, which lies on the west coast. It is believed that the island was named after a local hero, who is considered an offspring of the god Apollo and was worshipped locally in antiquity.

The capital city is still one of the most beautiful of all island towns, with white washed houses hiding dozens of little churches, shrines and chapels. The labyrinth design of the streets were intended to confuse the pirates who plagued Mykonos town in the 18th century. They still confuse visitors today but a stroll through town will reveal ample boutiques, art galleries, restaurants and cafes amid narrow alleyways and arched streets.

The small Archaeologica museum houses a collection of ancient vases and a bas-relief from the early archaic period, depicting scenes from the Trojan War. A Folk museum displays local handicrafts and depictions of life here before tourism. The entrance to this port is marked by Mykonos oldest and best-known church, Paraportiani, and the windmills next door.
