Welcome to Bridgetown, Barbados

Barbados is a sovereign island country in the Lesser Antilles. It is located 250 miles Northeast of Trinidad and Tobago. The Port of Bridgetown is the country's capital and largest city. With its pristine waters, British colonial history and idyllic climate, this limestone island ringed by coral reefs is a tropical gem you'll not soon forget—a mere 166 square miles, with plenty to do.

It is believed that Barbados' first inhabitants were the Amerindians, who reached the island around 1623 BC from the part of South America known today as Venezuela. Various tribes followed over the next 3,000 years, including the Arawaks and the Caribs. In 1537, the Spanish and Portuguese happened upon the island, christening it "Los Barbados," supposedly after the hanging roots of the Bearded Fig Tree.

By the time the British arrived in 1627, the original inhabitants had been virtually wiped out. Barbados was a boon for agriculture with its mild climate, rich soil and favorable geography. English rule lasted some 339 years; Barbados gained its independence in 1966.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT GOING ASHORE:

In Barbados it is against the law for anyone, even for children, to dress in camouflage clothing or carry items made with camouflage material. Smoking in public buildings or structures is also against the law.
