WHAT TO See and Do . . . . .

PLACES TO EXPLORE

Skagway, Alaska is a delightful port of call featuring natural wonders and legendary locales. Skagway offers an unforgettable stopover steeped in Native Alaskan traditions.

KLONDIKE GOLD RUSH NATIONAL HISTORIC PARK

Walk in the footsteps of Skagway's founding fathers with a stroll through this historic downtown district that became the gateway to the Klondike Gold Rush of the late 1890s. Featuring more than 15 buildings from the city's illustrious past, the park includes a visitor center which offers various guided tours and scenic hikes.

WHITE PASS & YUKON ROUTE RAILROAD

Deemed an International Historic Civil Engineering Landmark, this narrow-gauge train built in 1898 whisks Guests on an approximate 3 1/2 hour journey that follows the scenic trail taken by miners during the Klondike Gold Rush—past such legendary sites as Bridal Veil Falls, Inspiration Point and Dead Horse Gulch up 2,865 feet to the summit of White Pass and back.

SKAGWAY MUSEUM AND ARCHIVES

Immerse yourself in Skagway's intriguing history through a fine collection of relics, mementos and photographs at this museum housed in the historic McCabe College Building which was at one time used as both a federal courthouse and a jail.

JEWELL GARDENS

For nature lovers, Jewell Gardens is a must see, not only because it sits on the site of a farm that once grew produce for miners during the Klondike Gold Rush, but because of the inherent beauty of the site's gardens, which include various types of flowers, herbs, berries and vegetables. A glassblowing studio and a miniature railroad train only add to the fun.
