WHAT TO See and Do

PLACES TO EXPLORE

Brimming with natural wonders and timeless historic sites, Ketchikan, Alaska, offers an unforgettable adventure steeped in Native Alaskan traditions.

CREEK STREET

Stroll back through time along this historic city boardwalk, once a red-light district featuring 30 brothels. Today, the colorful houses that still remain are home to a museum, shops and a restaurant. During the summer months, the Creek Street Footbridge offers fantastic views of spawning salmon.

TOTEM HERITAGE CENTER

Established in 1976, the facility houses and displays original salvaged totem poles from abandoned Tlingit and Haida village sites, in addition to other Native Alaskan relics. Offering guided tours and a video about preservation efforts, the center includes totems that are over 100 years old.

DEER MOUNTAIN TRIBAL HATCHERY AND EAGLE CENTER

Overlooking Ketchikan Creek, this hatchery—considered by some to be the best in the state—boasts salmon by the thousands, and includes observation platforms where you can watch natural spawning. Owned by the Ketchikan Indian Corporation, the center also features illuminating exhibits on native fishing and offers an up-close encounter with two magnificent nesting bald eagles.

SAXMAN TOTEM PARK

Located approximately two miles out of Ketchikan, this picturesque park includes approximately 26 beautifully-sculpted, multi-colored totems, a tribal house where authentic dance performances can be viewed, a carving center, a culture hall and a gift shop.

TOTEM BIGHT STATE PARK

Overlooking the captivating Tongass Narrows, this serene state park is located approximately 10 miles north of Ketchikan and is home to both majestic 60-year old totem poles (restored and re-carved) and a native tribal house.

MISTY FJORDS NATIONAL MONUMENT

Escape to this awe-inspiring jewel amidst Alaska's natural wonders. Misty Fjords National Monument is 2.2 million protected acres of Tongass National Forest located approximately 20 air miles from Ketchikan. Only accessible by floatplane or boat, this incomparable natural masterpiece is nature at its most dramatic, boasting towering mountaintops, rushing waterfalls, fjords, glaciers and lakes that have to be seen to be believed.
